

Aviation English : Cabin Crew

Our courses are designed to equip both new and experienced cabin crew with the English language they need to perform their role. The courses provide comprehensive language training for all phases of flight, from welcoming passengers on board to saying goodbye. Recognising the varying time and budget constraints of busy professionals, we have designed three types of course to suit these different needs:

- 1:1 Aviation English in the UK
- Aviation English by Skype
- Aviation English self-study

Course structure

The course focuses on the vocabulary and grammar essential to the role of a flight attendant and includes:

- Pre-flight briefing
- Welcome on-board
- Take-off
- Cabin services
- Medical emergencies
- Safety and other emergencies
- Disruptive passengers
- Preparing for landing
- Saying good bye
- Applying for a job and interviews

The course is tailor-made for individuals according to your level of English and your specific requirements, ensuring that you make maximum progress in the time available. Our materials are designed to challenge and stimulate learning by encouraging discussion through question and answer sessions, role plays and describing photographs.

Lessons

A typical lesson is based around either a phase of flight or a particular situation a flight attendant may have to deal with, for example Preparing for Take-off or Disruptive Passengers. The lessons are highly interactive and involve a communicative approach, producing a dynamic learning environment. The lessons are very much focused on the learner and encourage discussion through question and answer sessions, role plays and description of photographs. For example, discussion might develop around dealing with disruptive passengers, handling the situation in a professional manner and any first hand experiences of the flight attendant. During the lesson the teacher offers correction and advice which helps the learner to improve accuracy and fluency.
